Description
Using the foreman-installer-2.1.3 for a fresh install, I experienced a problem, when configuring DHCP-parameters. The foreman-installer run failed because of 502 from the foreman-proxy. The proxy did not respond, because of the following error message in /var/log/foreman-proxy/proxy.log: <pre>[E] Disabling all modules in the group ['dhcp_isc', 'dhcp'] due to a failure in one of them: File at '/etc/dhcp/dhcpd.conf' defined in 'config' parameter doesn't exist or is unreadable</pre> The reason seems to be the fix for #30489. In our case, the file ACL was correctly set by puppet-foreman_proxy-module, but before the puppet-dhcp-moudle actually configured the /etc/dhcp/dhcpd.conf. The latter puppet-module also seems to do a chmod on the config file, which wipes the file-ACL. Thus, resulting in dhcpd.conf not being readable for the foreman-proxy. Even though I did not have this problem provisioning a centos7-katello-3.16 box with forklift, I reckon this might affect others as well. Environment: CentOS 7.8.2003 puppetserver-6.13.0-1.el7.noarch puppet-agent-6.18.0-1.el7.x86_64

My thought on this issue is, that it breaks a lot of installations and would justify a 2.1.3.1 release ASAP.
